Life-Wide Learning Day Activities

A lot of fun was had on our most recent Life-Wide Learning Day, on 10th May.

Our primary students learnt all about the power of magnets and how they can be used to push things along. They did this by making cars with magnets on the back. What a great idea!

When they had finished making them, they raced their cars in the school hall.

They also did a great job decorating the cars. They really showed off their creative skills, using whatever they could find around their classrooms to make the cars look cool and colourful!

Students from Key Stage One made cars that were powered by magnets. What a fun way to learn science!

Bathing the Buddha on his Birthday

On 7th May, we all celebrated Buddha's birthday. Some people from our school association joined us, and some parents came along too. We sang some Buddhist songs together, before pouring water on small statues of the Buddha. 'Bathing the Buddha' is a traditional way to celebrate Buddha's birthday. It is done by many people around the world.

Students, teachers, and members of our school community bathe the Buddha.

Preparing for our 30th Anniversary

We will celebrate Po Kwong's 30th Anniversary on Thursday, 6th June 2019. This is a big event for the school, and many of you have been working hard to prepare. There will be many visitors, and we want to show them all that our school is a happy, positive place to learn. There will be performances and school tours for our special guests. It should be a very fun day!
